“The competence capital of migrant women can no longer be systematically ignored and undervalued”

The Forward project has come to its end!

After an intensive two year work, the Forward partnership has the opportunity to present the final project results during the conference “Women, migration and competences – A portfolio to recognize experiences and validate competences” that will take place in Rome, Italy on Friday – 29th of November 2013.

The event will gather participants from different educational fields and background expertise: education professionals, researchers and experts, as well as social partners, decision makers or NGO’s. High qualitative programme content will be ensured by speeches of experts in the field of adult education and interculturality.

The transferability of the Forward model will be subject of a round table discussion among the following key elements:

- ✓ Integration of the Forward methodology into the validation system
- ✓ Usefulness of the model in work programmes
- ✓ Adequacy of the model for diverse vulnerable groups and social inclusion
- ✓ Innovativeness in mixing gender and interculturality
- ✓ Empowerment

A summary of the event results will be published on the project website right after the conference. <http://forwardproject.eu/> If you are interested in finding more about the project material or want to transfer the Forward model, do not hesitate to contact the project partner in your country!
